'A lot of parts to this puzzle': Museum CEO

Canadian Museum for Human Rights. Despite opening ceremonies this weekend, crews scramble to get galleries finished

SHANE GIBSON
shane.gibson@metronews.ca

Winnipeggers lining up this weekend to get their first look inside the Canadian Museum for Human Rights might be in for a surprise.

It's not quite done.

Despite the hoopla planned for the $351-million facility's grand opening this weekend, CMHR president and CEO Stuart Murray confirmed Thursday what media saw when they toured the museum earlier this week — exhibits are not fully set up and workers in hard hats are scrambling throughout the building to get the job finished.

"There's lots to do, there's no question," Murray told Metro, explaining the 9,000 or so people registered for free tours this weekend will only see four of the museum's galleries. "There's a lot of parts of this puzzle to put together and some of the things that we had ordered and felt would be here at a certain time haven't arrived as we'd thought.

"That's just sort of the reality of putting a once-in-a-generation project together."

Murray said he's confident all galleries — and the Tower of Hope — will be open in time for the museum's first official day open, now planned for Sept. 27, but he admits visitors may still find workers among the exhibits finishing the final touches even a week after Friday's opening ceremonies.

"We will continue to work as hard as we can," he said, noting crews will be starting work early and leaving late over the next week in an effort to finish. "There still may be some things that we have to do, but the visitor experience, I think, will be something that will be very inspiring."

Forum sees new line of attack on Wasylycia-Leis

'Back in the '80s.'
Rival Brian Bowman's criticism centred on payroll tax

BERNICE PONTANILLA

A mayoral candidates forum put on by the Assiniboia Chamber of Commerce saw another candidate launch an attack against perceived frontrunner Judy Wasylycia-Leis.

Brian Bowman joined rival Gord Steeves in calling out Wasylycia-Leis' ties to the provincial and federal NDP Thursday at the Viscount Gort Hotel.

Bowman took Wasylycia-Leis to task in both of his answers, implying that she wouldn't challenge the provincial NDP government for more sales tax funding, and even reached into her past.

"Judy, if you've got a great relationship with our current (provincial) government, I would again urge you to help join many people in this room to end the payroll tax that you introduced when you were working for Howard Pawley back in the '80s," said Bowman, who also promised not to run in the next provincial or federal elections to show his commitment to the municipal level.

Wasylycia-Leis did fight back, saying that if Winnipeggers like crumbling infrastructure "you're going to love Gord Steeves," and, in response to Bowman's challenge, saying that as mayor she will take on the provincial and federal governments for a better deal for the city.

As for promoting Winnipeg, Coun. Paula Havixbeck said she'd see the creation of more festivals, such as Human Rights Week and Polar Bear Week.

New channel on Lake Manitoba may be done by 2020: Minister

$450M investment. Province beginning consultations on efforts to address chronic flooding

Manitoba is moving ahead with its plan to carve out another flood outlet to prevent chronic flooding along Lake Manitoba.

Infrastructure Minister Steve Ashton said the channel could be completed by 2020 at a cost of up to $450 million, including modifications to the current emergency channel at Lake St. Martin.

The province has narrowed the project down to two options and is starting consultations.

"It's a very significant investment," Ashton said Thursday. "But it's not only the right thing to do, it's the only thing to do."

Residents around Lake Manitoba who have suffered chronic flooding slammed the province for taking seven years to offer relief. But Ashton said there are 31 steps the government has to take before it even starts construction on the channel.

Progressive Conservative critic Shannon Martin said the steps laid out by the government assume the province is incapable of doing things simultaneously. The government also lists issuing a news release as one of the steps, he noted.

If the province was serious about preventing flooding, it would open the existing emergency channel to full capacity, he said.

The Tories say aerial photos shot by a local resident show the channel at Lake St. Martin is partially blocked.

"Almost three months ago the NDP warned Manitobans of dire consequences if the Lake St. Martin channel was not open," Martin said. "They say a picture is worth a thousand words. It can be summed up in three — it's not open."

But Ashton said the channel is operating at about 75 per cent capacity. It doesn't matter what the opening looks like but how much water is actually flowing through the channel, he said.

The channel has already brought Lake St. Martin down to below flood levels, Ashton said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cost of Bipole 3 hydro line rises by another $1.3B

The price tag for a Manitoba Hydro megaproject jumped again on Thursday — a move that will likely lead to more questions about the province's energy plans.

The Crown utility announced a new estimate of $4.6 billion for the Bipole Three transmission line, up from $3.3 billion in 2011 and an original figure of $2.2 billion in 2007.

The utility said converter technology is the main reason. The corporation assumed businesses that submitted bids would use new, less expensive types of converters that are coming on-stream in other jurisdictions, but they aren't.

"It is in operation around the world but up until now, in predominantly marine and short-haul applications," said Hydro president and CEO Scott Thomson.

The extra cost will be paid over many years and will only mean a rate increase of one-third of a percentage point — or $3 or $4 a year for the average residential customer, he added. That is on top of 3.9 per cent increases Hydro is already planning annually for the next several years to help fund new projects.

Hydro originally wanted to build a much shorter and less expensive transmission line down the east side of Lake Winnipeg, connecting dams in the north with customers in the south. But in 2007, the NDP government ordered the utility to run the line far to the west — almost to the Saskatchewan boundary — in order to protect the boreal forest on the east side of the lake.

The Opposition Progress-

sive Conservatives criticized the move at the time and predicted the cost of the project would jump.

With construction underway on Bipole Three, Thomson said the utility has no intention of going back to the government to ask it to reconsider an east-side route.

Mike Vogiatzakis backs Brian Bowman

'Signing on.'

Endorsement shows campaign gaining momentum: Bowman

A day after vowing to fight to remain in the mayoral race, Mike Vogiatzakis has thrown his support behind Brian Bowman.

A campaign worker for Bowman shared a photo of the smiling pair and Vogiatzakis pointing at Bowman on Twitter, with the caption "Good morning #wpg14 — Just met w/(Brian Bowman) happy to throw my support behind him to be the next mayor of wpg."

Vogiatzakis said now that he's out of the running, Bowman is the best man for the top municipal job.

"He shows a lot of character, he's young, he's got a young family, I think he's got Winnipeg's best interests in his heart," Vogiatzakis said, adding Bowman was the only fellow candidate to contact him after his nomination troubles.

Bowman said he appreciates the support of any Winnipegger "that's willing to sign on to the type of change that we want to bring to city hall, including Mike."

Vogiatzakis said during a press conference at his funeral home that he submitted over 400 names before Tuesday's nomination deadline, with 198 accepted by city clerks and the rest rejected. Members of his staff then compared the city's voters' list to the list his campaign provided and found discrepancies.

He urged city clerks to call him back so they could discuss the situation, but didn't hear back from them.

"I don't want to create more bureaucracy," he said, adding that he won't pursue the matter in the courts as he originally threatened to do. BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Mayoral candidate. David Sanders blasts Bowman's BRT plan

Still upset over being excluded from a Downtown BIZ debate last week, mayoral candidate David Sanders said if he's not going to get the chance to question his competitors in public forums, then he's going to do it on his own.

First up on the grill was Brian Bowman.

At a campaign announcement at the Forks on Thursday, Sanders said expanding bus rapid transit, one of Bowman's central campaign promises, would be a "boondoggle ... which cannot be justified economically."

He ripped into many of Bowman's other commitments, saying that securing a greater share of the provincial sales tax was unrealistic, finding two per cent savings in the city budget doesn't go far enough, and opening Portage and Main to pedestrians would just create traffic problems.

Sanders said he took aim at Bowman because he "seems to be the favourite of various people responding to online polls," but he promised detailed reviews of every candidate's platform in the weeks ahead.

A former deputy minister of municipal affairs in the provincial government, Sanders has become known over the past few years for his harsh critiques of city council.

For his part, Bowman stuck to the high road in responding to Sanders' complaints.

"I respect the views of all the other candidates, but we're going to continue to roll out ideas that are ambitious for the city," he said.

Canadian Museum for Human Rights set to open on weekend

14 years in the making.

Brainchild of Izzy Asper comes to light after years of fundraising and controversy

After 14 years of work, Canada's first national museum outside of Ottawa — the Canadian Museum for Human Rights — is set to open in Winnipeg this weekend.

First envisioned by the late Winnipeg-based media magnate and philanthropist Izzy Asper in 2000, the 260,000-square-foot museum will open its doors to the public for the first time Saturday following an opening ceremony Friday.

"People have been working so hard, they're so passionate and I think we realize what we have here — we're a little like a kid before Christmas," said museum spokeswoman Angela Cassie this week about finally opening the museum. "After all this work, having people coming through and experiencing the exhibits is an amazing feeling for all of us."

The $351-million museum, which sits at the historic confluence of the Red and Assiniboine rivers at The Forks, has 47,000-square-feet of exhibit space and interactive galleries delving into everything from the Holocaust and war atrocities to the high and low points of Canada's own human rights record.

The museum has been a lightning rod for controversy during its development, with several cultural groups complaining human rights violations they've suffered are either absent from the exhibits, or glazed over.

"For a human rights museum, that is to be expected," Cassie said of the complaints and protests expected for the opening weekend. "We will work together with organizations that have concerns, and allow that to update and inform how we update and renew our exhibits and public programming."

The public will be able to take guided tours of four of the museum's galleries this weekend, and all exhibits — including the building's iconic glass Tower of Hope — are set to open Sept. 27.

Timeline

A look at the long, sometimes bumpy road to the opening of the Canadian Museum for Human Rights:

July, 2000: Winnipeg media magnate and philanthropist Izzy Asper pitches to the federal government the idea of a "tolerance" museum in Winnipeg.

April, 2003: The Asper family, federal government, province and city announce plans for a $200-million human rights museum. The feds' initial commitment is $30 million.

Oct. 7, 2003: Izzy Asper dies. His daughter Gail Asper becomes the driving force behind the museum project.

Jan., 2006: While donations pour in, The Asper Foundation puts up another $12 million for capital costs. Opening is pushed from 2008 to 2010.

Dec., 2008: The federal government essentially takes over. The price tag is now $265 million. The feds kick in $100 million, plus annual operating costs of $21 million.

July, 2009: Construction gets underway, but inflation and other factors drive up the projected cost to $310 million.

Nov., 2013: Exterior construction nears completion. An opening date of Sept. 19, 2014, is announced. The price tag has grown to $351 million.

Sept., 2014: Workers rush to finish the first four galleries in time for the grand opening. As of press deadline, it's unknown if they will finish on time.

Ottawa not meddling with rights museum, CEO insists

Tracking references to federal government.

Press secretary says it's all just part of the job

The office of Heritage Minister Shelly Glover says there was nothing untoward in a request to the Canadian Museum for Human Rights to provide a complete list of exhibits that refer to the Government of Canada.

With only days left until the museum's official opening, Glover visited the museum and made the request.

Museum CEO Stuart Murray said the request and Glover's visits were not a sign of political interference by Ottawa.

"There is no political interference," said Murray. "I'm glad they take an interest."

Since the museum is part of Glover's portfolio, it's understandable she would come to the museum and ask for information about the exhibits, Murray said.

Glover's press secretary, Marisa Monnin, said in a statement that the visit and meetings were business as usual.

"I can tell you that of course the minister of Canadian Heritage has visited the (museum), not only this past week but several times over several years," Monnin said.

"She has, in fact, visited almost every single national museum this year, as all national museums report to Parliament through her. As minister she is expected to be knowledgeable about all aspects of our museums."

In earlier research, University of Manitoba law professor Karen Busby found some changes in the way some of the museum exhibits — including one of the exhibits on residential schools and Canada's treatment of refugees — were defined in 2012 as compared to their descriptions in 2013, according to documents obtained through access-to-information legislation.

The reasons for the changes are not known, Busby said in an interview.

"It could have been change of staff. It could have been the board or staff. I honestly don't know, and it could be a combination of all things." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Celebration. Bruce Cockburn and Buffy Sainte-Marie perform Saturday night

The Canadian Museum for Human Rights is finally ready to open and, after years of work there's only one thing left to do — party.

The museum is marking the first public tours of the $351-million facility, which start Saturday, with a two-day celebration dubbed RightsFest that'll include more than 25 performances on stages set up around the building all weekend long.

Organizers say there's something for every taste on the bill, including performances from Manitoba Opera, and the big show on the main stage will wrap up Saturday night with headliners Bruce Cockburn and Buffy Sainte-Marie.

Electronic artists A Tribe Called Red were originally scheduled to perform Saturday, but decided against it on Thursday. A release from CMHR says the group had concerns about "the way Indigenous issues are presented in the Museum."

Others scheduled to perform throughout the jam-packed weekend include: Del Barber, Sierra Noble, Eagle & Hawk Band, The Bros. Landreth, Royal Canoe, Ashley MacIsaac, Shad and the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra.

But it's not just music, there's a bevy of dance acts

Bones found in Red River not human: Police

Winnipeg police say bones found in the Red River by volunteers are not human.

The river was being searched for clues about the fate of missing and murdered aboriginal women. Const. Jason Michalyshen said forensic analysis by two pathologists has confirmed they are animal bones.

Volunteers searching the banks of the Red River came across the bones earlier this week. The group is combing the shoreline and dragging the bottom of the river, searching for anything that might bring closure to those searching for loved ones. A blood-splattered pillowcase, a bloody rug and a set of dentures have also been turned over to police.

"We're absolutely taking the search ... very seriously," Michalyshen said. The group formed after the discovery of the body of Tina Fontaine, 15, last month.

Man tries to flee scene of three-vehicle collision

Some good Samaritans came to the rescue after a man attempted to flee the scene of a three-vehicle collision around 4 p.m. on Wednesday afternoon.

Winnipeg police said the man drove a stolen SUV through a stop sign at Pacific Avenue West and Cecil Street. He struck a vehicle, causing the two vehicles to hit a third, police added, then waved a knife while trying to leave the area.

He was pinned down by witnesses and held until police arrived.

A 38-year-old man was taken into custody.

Police said alcohol appears to be a factor in the collision.

The 31-year-old male driver of one of the other vehicles was taken to hospital with life-threatening injuries.

He has been upgraded to stable condition.

A man and woman charged with assaulting a police officer back in March are facing new charges after police say a complaint they made against arresting officers proved to be unfounded.

The police's Professional Standards Unit began investigating in April after the man and woman complained about the conduct of officers who arrested them at a home in the 500 block of Mountain Avenue March 28.

Police said Thursday the investigation has shown the complaint was fabricated, and the pair were rearrested last week after consultation with the Manitoba Prosecution Service.

Montana. Rapist charged with urging his victim to kill herself as he watched

A man in prison for raping a girl starting when she was 12 is now charged with trying to persuade her to kill herself by cutting her wrists and taking prescription medication while he watched on a webcam.

Michael John Morlan, 21, was out on bail on the rape charges when he spoke with the then-15-year-old girl via Skype last September and told her to commit suicide while he watched.

The girl told investigators that when she started crying, Morlan told her to stop wasting air and get it over with. The teen said Morlan repeatedly told her to kill herself. When she started cutting her wrists, he told her to cut deeper and then told her to take a handful of antidepressants, court records said.

She took the pills then panicked, disconnected the call and went to her parents. Morlan is serving a seven-year prison sentence for raping the girl. He is scheduled to Aiding or soliciting suicide carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

Morlan was charged with two felony counts of sexual intercourse without consent in the fall of 2012.

He pleaded guilty to the rape charges in November.

The previously unreleased research is bound to add fuel to the fire raging in Canada over the Conservative government's refusal to hold a national inquiry on the subject.

Many people who took part in the study said human trafficking and murdered and missing women are symptoms of a much larger problem. "A number of participants believed that the trafficking of aboriginal women and girls was part of a wider 'Canadian crisis,'" says the May 2014 report, obtained under the Access to Information Act. Prime Minister Stephen Harper has said the issue is a crime problem, not a "sociological phenomenon."

metro AR Toronto Mayor Rob Ford released a recorded message Thursday thanking his well-wishers. Ford was diagnosed Wednesday with malignant liposarcoma, a type of cancer that arises from fat cells and can attack a variety of soft tissues. He withdrew his candidacy for re-election as mayor last week, opting to run as a councillor in the same ward he had represented for a decade before being elected to the top job in 2010. 'I will beat this,' Rob Ford vows

Audio message from hospital bed.

Toronto's mayor thanks well-wishers but also stumps for brother who replaced him in mayoral race

A frail-sounding Rob Ford implored Toronto voters from his hospital bed Thursday to elect his brother, Coun. Doug Ford, to succeed him, just hours before starting chemotherapy for a rare and aggressive cancer that forced him to drop out of the mayoral race.

In a recorded three-minute statement released by his brother's campaign team, a gravelly-voiced Ford first thanked well-wishers, saying their support meant the world to him and his family.

"With the love and support of my family, my friends, and the people of Toronto, I will beat this," he added. "I am determined to face this head-on and return strong for my family and for my city."

Ford was diagnosed Wednesday with malignant liposarcoma, a type of cancer that arises from fat cells and can attack a variety of soft tissues. His doctor said he will be undergoing two rounds of chemotherapy before they determine the next step in his treatment.

His brother entered the mayoral race after Ford withdrew his bid for re-election last Friday.

One expert was skeptical that the ill mayor's endorsement of his brother will boost support even among Ford's followers.

"I just don't think that we can expect that all those people are going to listen to that and move over, because their connection with Rob was an emotional connection," said Henry Jacek, a political science professor at Hamilton's McMaster University.

Ford's recording is not unlike the public letter former federal NDP leader Jack Layton penned on his death bed in 2011, he said.

"Some people, for whom politics is so terribly important, they feel so strongly about (it), they're delivering that political message right to the very, very end," Jacek said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

12 jurors picked as Magnotta murder trial set to start

Two more jurors have been chosen to hear evidence at Luka Rocco Magnotta's murder trial, bringing to 12 the number picked so far.

The jury now has six men and six women.

The process will continue until 16 people have been picked — 14 jurors and two alternates who will serve as a safeguard until the trial begins.

The 32-year-old Magnotta has pleaded not guilty to five charges, including first-degree murder, in connection with the May 2012 slaying and dismemberment of 33-year-old Jun Lin, a Chinese engineering student.

The trial is expected to last between six and eight weeks and is scheduled to begin hearing evidence this coming Monday.

Police stop beheading plot, detain 15 suspects

Australian ISIS plot.

Supporters of the Islamic militant group alleged to be behind plot to kill Aussie Prime Minister Australian police thwarted a plot to carry out beheadings on Thursday that were to be conducted by local supporters of Islamic militants.

Officials said police raided over a dozen properties across Sydney and were holding six people, one they have identified as the suspected ringleader. Nine others were detained and freed before the day was over.

The raid involved 800 federal and state officers — the largest in Australian history — and came in response to intelligence that the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS) leaders were calling on Australian supporters to kill Prime Minister Tony Abbott.

Abbott was asked about reports that the detainees were planning to behead a random person in Sydney.

"That's the intelligence we received," he told reporters, noting the threats came from a senior ISIS member in Australia. ISIS refers to the al-Qaida splinter group leading Sunni militants in Iraq and Syria.

"This is not just suspicion, this is intent — and that's why the police and security agencies decided to act in the way they have," Abbott said.

Australia estimates about 60 citizens are fighting alongside the ISIS and Nusra Front groups in Iraq and Syria, while it additionally believes at least 100 Australians actively support extremist groups from within the country in capacities inclusive of training and recruitment.

Multivitamins, Do You Really Need One?

The problem with this question is that the answer is different for everyone. The reason the Sports Nutritionists at Muscles by Meyers recommend taking a daily Multivitamin is to ensure you are getting the minimum micronutrients required for healthy human function. Although eating nutritious foods will provide you with high levels of vitamins and minerals, the actual amount of fruits and vegetables needed to hit most of these targets, are sometimes outrageous! Really, who wants to eat 12 heads of broccoli every day?

Sports Nutritionist Tip:

The Top 5 Reasons to take a Multivitamin:

- Boost your immune system: keep your immune system running at full speed, especially during times of stress, lack of sleep or extreme weather.
- Improve short term memory: optimal levels of essential vitamins and minerals can help improve short term memory in most individuals.
- Boost energy levels: when we are deficient in a vitamin or mineral, or on a calorie restricted diet, the most common symptom is fatigue.
- Reduce cravings for alcohol: studies show that maintaining healthy calcium, magnesium and B Vitamin levels can help reduce one's desire for another drink.
- Maintain & improve muscle strength: at your desk or in the gym, keep your muscles strong

Independence. Historic day arrives as Scots vote on whether or not to break away from the United Kingdom

Excitement vied with apprehension as Scottish voters went to the polls Thursday in a referendum on independence, deciding whether to dissolve a 307-year union with England that brought prosperity but has increasingly felt stifling to many Scots.

As the polls closed and the vote counting began, there was a quiet thrill of history in the making on the fog-shrouded streets of Scotland's capital, Edinburgh. Many Scots were staying up all night in homes and bars to watch the results roll in.

Eager voters had lined up outside some polling stations even before they opened at 7 a.m. Many polling stations were busy and turnout was expected to be high. More than 4.2 million people had registered to vote — 97 per cent of those eligible — including residents as young as 16.

A Yes vote would trigger 18 months of negotiations between Scottish leaders and London-based politicians on how the two countries would separate their institutions before Scotland's planned Independence Day on March 24, 2016. For some, it was a day they had dreamed of for decades. For others, the time had finally come to make up their mind — both for themselves and the U.K.

Zero connection.

Calgary shop owners say they are enduring endless questions about whether their store, Isis, is connected to ISIS

JEREMY NOLA
Metro in Calgary

Three years ago, Aryn Jagshi and his business partners settled on the name Isis for their jewelry shop in Calgary's Northland Village Mall in hopes of evoking an exotic vibe. Now, he claims he's being asked four to five times a day about potential connections to Islamic radicals.

"We have people come in and act like they've just solved a big mystery, like we are the ones behind these guys," Jagshi said referring to the group, known both as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) and the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS).

Jagshi suspects some of the association may be tied to media reports of at least four former Calgary residents who headed overseas to fight with the group in recent years.

"People don't know what they're talking about," he said. "There might be somebody doing that (funding the extremist group), but they wouldn't put the name ISIS on their front door."

Isis is also the name of an Egyptian goddess, but lately the term has been prevalent in news headlines as the radical group has claimed to have beheaded two American journalists and a British aid worker. Meanwhile U.S. President Barack Obama has gone public with a plan to train Syrian rebels to fight ISIS members.

Jagshi said he's considering changing the name after the Christmas busy season. In the meantime, he may put up a sign clarifying that the profits he's making from necklaces and earrings are not being funnelled to the extremist group.

In Edmonton, meanwhile, Colleen Sims says she's "half-and-half" on whether to change the name of her company, Isis Clothing. She said she's been on the receiving end of only one slur to date, but worries about the lasting attachment to the term.

"I've been talking to my sales agents and they think it will be OK," she said. "I can't really tell you if we'll change it or not ... it's our crazy buying time, so any decision would probably be after that."

'Transparency report'. Telus got 103,500 requests for customers' info in 2013

Telus Corp.'s first "transparency" report reveals that the Vancouver-based telecom company received about 103,500 official requests for information about its customers last year.

A majority of the requests — nearly 56,800 — were made in emergency situations, such as to verify the location of 911 callers and another 40,900 requests were for names and addresses that are publicly available through directories.

Telus also received about 4,300 court-ordered requests in 2013, mostly as part of domestic police investigations, but also two foreign requests made under Canada's treaty obligations.

It also received 154 other requests as part of police investigations into suspected Internet child exploitation, without court orders — but the company says it no longer will provide such information in most cases without a court order.

Telus executive vice-president Eros Spadotto says the company is trying to strike a balance between fulfilling its responsibilities under the law and concern for its customers' privacy.

"You don't have to look very far to know that this has become one of the key areas with clients all over the world, no matter what service provider they have, in terms of trying to understand how their information is being used," Spadotto said in an interview ahead of the report's release. Got a bag? That'll be $25. Air Canada latest airline to charge for first checked bag

Air Canada, as expected, is joining rival WestJet Airlines in charging passengers a fee to check their first bag on domestic flights, as the two airlines also finalize plans to introduce other ancillary fees in a move to boost revenue.

The new fee being charged by Air Canada applies to passengers booking the airline's lowest economy class Tango fares as of Thursday for flights beginning Nov. 2. It applies to flights within Canada and to the Caribbean and Mexico.

The Montreal-based airline has charged for a traveller's first checked bag on U.S. routes since 2011.

The country's largest airline said the fee was being introduced domestically to align it "with prevailing North American industry practices."

"We're matching the market," chief financial officer Michael Rousseau told a CIBC investor conference in Montreal.

Earlier this week, Calgary-based WestJet announced a fee, ranging between $25 and $29.50 depending on provincial taxes, for a first checked bag for some economy class customers on flights within Canada and to the United States, but not to Mexico, the Caribbean, Central America and Europe. Industry observers had expected Air Canada to add the fee which, the airline says, will affect about 20 per cent of passengers on domestic flights. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fall Parade Showcase

BY MIKE MOORE, PRESIDENT, MANITOBA HOME BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

Welcome to the 2014 Fall Parade of Homes. The Manitoba Home Builders' Association is proud to present the finest variety of new homes. With 129 new homes by 31 different builders in 35 subdivisions, ours remains the largest Parade of Homes offered anywhere in Canada. Nowhere else is there more variety for you, the viewing public.

The design and construction expertise that goes into each new home is unparalleled. Take time when visiting to appreciate outstanding Manitoba craftsmanship. It might seem impossible, but there are unique innovations and ideas to be found in every single show home. Talk to the representatives showing the homes about unique features and what makes that particular home special. With such a wide selection available, we're confident that the perfect new home is waiting right now for you to visit. There is definitely something for everyone.

MHBA builder members appreciate the importance of your decision to purchase a new home. That is why they encourage Parade visitors to look carefully at each detail, talk to the sales agents and return for additional visits. After all, show homes are open after the Parade, too. Our builders want to ensure that you are matched with the home that is perfect for your life situation and family for years to come. We believe that this year's selection of new homes offers the right design and the right location for everyone. Be sure to visit as many homes as possible to take full advantage of the Parade. The more homes you visit, the more new and exciting ideas you will get.

In addition to variety and quality, there are numerous additional good reasons why now is the perfect time to purchase a new home. Financial institutions are still offering long term mortgages at rates among the lowest in decades. Housing prices continue to increase in value year after year, making them among the most sound of all investments. Manitoba new homes are the most energy efficient in the country and a move to a new home results in significant energy savings.

Manitoba's new home construction industry is strong and vibrant. MHBA member builders and suppliers keep abreast of the latest technology, trends and techniques to ensure that your new home offers affordability, quality and choice.

Enjoy the 2014 Fall Parade of Homes and thank you for visiting.

Parade of Homes VIEWING TIPS

FROM THE MANITOBA HOMES BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

- Wear comfortable slip-on shoes: Many neighbourhoods have multiple show homes, which means you'll probably park in one location and walk to all of the homes. Upon entering each home, you must take off your street shoes in order to tour. Given that some neighbourhoods have more than 10 homes open for viewing, a comfortable walking shoe that slips on and off easily is ideal.
- Map a strategy: If you have a particular destination in mind, look for additional homes to visit on the way. Many subdivisions are in close proximity to each other and it's easy to see a number of them on one tour.
- Don't forget the one-offs: Enjoy the variety in subdivisions with multiple homes, but don't miss the hidden gems in neighbourhoods that have only one Parade listing.
- Talk to the agents: Sales agents can fill you in on unique features, energy efficiencies and construction materials that make each home special.
- Have fun: You can visit as many show homes as you like, as often as you like. It doesn't matter if you're in the market for a new home or if you're just looking for life-size design inspiration. Take a friend, take your time, and have fun.

GREAT SCOTS! WHAT A WEEK IT'S BEEN

It's time for the Metro List, your surefire guide to the hottest stories of the week.

1 Scotland the Brave. By the time you read this, lassies and laddies, you'll know if Scotland has chosen to go it alone. It will require a wee dram of courage because even the Bank of Scotland says it will move to London if the Yes side wins.

2 Rob Ford vs. Liposarcoma. His Worship the Mayor of Toronto goes mano a mano with a rare and aggressive form of cancer featuring a tumour that's bigger than a baseball. I don't know about you, but I'm not going to bet against Rob Ford, whatever he's up against.

3 Time to Lose the Baggage. After this week, more and more Canadians will be travelling light, as first WestJet and then Air Canada add a $25 baggage handling charge for checked bags in economy class. How long before they start charging you for that 50-pound suitcase you're trying to stuff in the overhead?

4 Fly Me to the Moon. Well, not quite, but NASA has commissioned Boeing and SpaceX to be the first private companies to transport humans in space. The first destination will be ISS, the International Space Station, sometime in 2017. The good news: NASA will no longer have to pay the Russians $71 million per flight. But you have to wonder how much Boeing will charge for checked baggage.

5 Worm in the Apple? Apple CEO Tim Cook puts his cool clothes on and unveils a fall crop of devices, including an iWatch that's even better than Superman's wrist communicator. The problem is that on every front, Android was there first. Stay tuned for more smug commercials that take a bite out of Apple.

6 Gridiron Violence, Si! Domestic Violence, No! The NFL is learning a hard lesson this week. When you encourage young men to beat the crap out of each other for millions of dollars, you shouldn't be surprised when some of them take their work home. Somehow, it has come as a collective shock to the system that it's not OK to knock your wife out or beat your little boy until he's bloody. Are you ready for some football, or is it enough, already?

7 War on Terror 2.0. Meanwhile, there's a war going on. I think. US president Barack Obama has kinda declared war on ISIS, the latest nasty terrorist nightmare. But it's hardly shock and awe. More like this and that. The U.S. will train Arab armies to fight on the ground, while sending in airstrikes. The object seems to be to make an omelette without breaking any American eggs. Good luck with that.

The War on Bees?

RCMP investigate report that thousands of bees may have been poisoned

RCMP in Brandon, Man., are investigating a report that thousands of honey bees have been poisoned in the region recently.

Mounties say in a news release that two locations northwest of Brandon in the rural municipality of Elton are involved. They allege that poisonings are believed to have happened between Aug. 14 and Sept. 3. Mounties say the bee producers have suffered a substantial financial loss.

Dwindling bee populations have been an increasing concern in the agricultural community, though generally not because of any criminal action. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tough times

In recent years, bee populations worldwide have been ravaged by pesticides, parasites and Colony Collapse Disorder, a mysterious phenomenon in which worker bees suddenly disappear.

- California. A record drought has reduced honey supplies, raising prices and making it harder for beekeepers to earn a living.

- Ontario. A proposed class-action lawsuit has been launched against two chemical companies that make pesticides widely blamed for massive bee deaths.

Characters spend more time talking about the forbidden labyrinth than actually seeking their way around it

Richard: Mark, the story in The Maze Runner is based on a dare. When Thomas is dropped into a mysterious walled world where a society of boys have grown up in the shadow of a giant labyrinth, he is told, "Don't go in the maze."

Of course he does, because that's like telling a teen, "Don't go through that door," in a horror flick. Based on a series of wildly popular young adult books — so yes, you can look forward to The Maze Runner 2: Electric Boogaloo coming soon to a theatre near you — and the immediacy of the story serves it well ... to a point.

It's a good set-up that turns into a becomes a standard 3D sci-fi chase flick.

What did you think?

Mark: Richard, it was dull, dull, dull, interrupted by the occasional exciting scene but it played like a dumbed-down version of Lost for paranoid teens.

Yes, the set-up is good, but so little time is actually spent in the maze, and there's too much time talking about it.

The dialogue is mostly exposition, the acting is functional at best, and although it's cut from the same cloth as The Hunger Games, it doesn't have any of its bite.

It's no spoiler alert to reveal that some will survive, and the big reveal is laughable in the way it shills for the inevitable sequel.

RC: I liked it way more than you. I liked that the characters are cyphers with no knowledge of their pasts, so they have to create personas based on their abilities in the camp.

That way, unlike most original stories, we don't have to spend much time getting to know the characters, where they came from, or what their inner torment is.

They don't know and neither do we.

Instead they concentrate on the present — their present — and survival. Imagine if the reality show Survivor was set in a world surrounded by an impenetrable maze and the only way to get voted off the island was to be eaten by a giant, mechanical Griever beast.

MB: Actually, that's a pretty good description of Survivor. Mazes intrigue me, and so do mad scientists.

Synopsis

Based on a series of wildly popular young adult books, The Maze Runner sees Thomas, played by Teen Wolf's Dylan O'Brien, plopped into a community of young men surrounded by a labyrinth. The rebellious Thomas wants to see if there is a way to navigate through the ever-changing maze that stands between the boys and whatever is happening in the outside world. When a girl, played by Kaya Scodelario, arrives with a note clutched in her hand, ("She is the last one,") it seems like the time has come to take on the maze and hopefully avoid being eaten by its evil guardians, the Griever.

• Richard: ●●●●

• Mark: ●●●●

You'd think the combination would work here, but it just didn't for me. I preferred Cube and even the much-maligned The Village as riffs on the same topic.

Of course, you could see the movie as a metaphor for a cruel deity's continuous test of the human race, but... naaaaaah. And I really wanted a more shocking ending.

RC: I think there will be more thrills should the next part of the series ever get made.

The first movie is just the foreplay.

MB: Foreplay perhaps, but with cold fingers and bad breath.

Pondering the pursuit of happiness

Simon Pegg stars in Hector and the Search for Happiness, which opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

Simon Pegg. Actor's latest role has him reflecting on cynicism, psychiatry and the malaise of modern Western civilization

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Simon Pegg goes all out in Hector and the Search for Happiness as the titular psychiatrist stymied by modern life who embarks on a globe-trotting trip to get in touch with his inner child.

To hear Pegg tell it, how you respond to the film says a lot about you.

I totally fell for this film, but then I'm a total sap. Well, one person's sap is another person's ... emotionally open person. There's nothing wrong with giving yourself over to something. It's easy to be cynical and dismiss something that's arguably sentimental as being frivolous, but I don't think that's true. I think the message of this film is a little bit more sophisticated than just schmaltz. It's about getting in touch with a childlike wonder and accessing your own happiness through that.

I found a lot of the British critics were like, "Oh no, this is terribly ... no, thank you."

That's the British critic accent?

It is! "Oh no, we don't like this. Too, too, too rough, too emotional." I get why, but if you're fundamentally unhappy, this film will shine quite a bright light on that, whereas if you have a capacity to be happy you'll come out of it going, "Yeah, man!"

At one point Hector gets very down on his profession of psychiatry because many of his patients treat it as a luxury item, but that's not the whole of that field.

I totally agree that in psychiatry you can help people to address issues that they have that might damage their lives, but at the same time when you don't have to worry about survival, when you don't have to worry about finding your next meal or living through the night, you have time to start thinking about stuff like that, and that's when you start questioning your happiness. There is a certain numbness to modern living for us in affluent society where we have so much choice and we're so looked after, pandered to, offered so much stuff that's supposed to make us happy that we completely lose sight of what it means. Whereas if you spent yesterday avoiding being shot and you know that today you're not going to get shot, your happiness would be so much more real and identifiable and easier to understand. That's not advocating not getting shot as being a way of being happy, mind you.

I don't know, I could recommend not getting shot as a way to be happy. I could certainly recommend that just purely as a survival method.

Dan Stevens has a twisted sense of humour

The Guest. Actor jumped at the chance to have a role in a thriller that has him playing a veteran with a deadly secret

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Dan Stevens wanted a change and he certainly got one. After quickly developing a devoted fan base as Matthew Crawley on Downton Abbey, the 32-year-old actor was eager to shake things up. This week finds him as a vet with a deadly secret in The Guest and a troubled drug kingpin alongside Liam Neeson in A Walk Among the Tombstones. So ... pretty different.

I saw this film yesterday and ... holy crap.

That's a great response. I hope that's a good "holy crap."

How on earth was this movie pitched to you?

The funny thing was, it was never really pitched. I'd tried to sort of put the word out there that I was looking for something different, and I got sent this script. I'd recently seen You're Next, and I just really wanted to meet the crazy guys who'd made that film. When I sat down with (director) Adam (Wingard) it was very quickly established that we had the same twisted kind of sense of humour, but also the same desire to entertain. And as soon as we realized that we both really passionately loved the movie Big Trouble in Little China, we knew we were off to a good start.

The Guest opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

A classic, to be sure.

One of the many things we like about that film, particularly for me as an actor, is just that the amount of fun that Kurt Russell looks like he's having is kind of infectious as a performer. I think we were looking to capture some of that passion and enthusiasm. Growing up in England, we were steeped in American action thrillers and horror movies, and it's a kind of film that they don't really make in England. There's kind of a nod to it in Simon Pegg and Nick Frost's film Hot Fuzz, where they acknowledge that as Brit fanboys, we don't get to make those kinds of movies.

Something happened in the last 10 years or so where everyone decided action movies had to be serious.

Right. It's interesting to watch these cinematic shifts in terms of how we approach things like violence. But there's very much a kind of tongue-in-cheek attitude to The Guest. And something I was keen to explore is how you inject character and humour into an action film, something that always used to happen in '80s and '90s action thrillers.

And I kind of missed that.

My Old Lady. Kevin Kline talks coming of age — a little bit later in life

When Kevin Kline agreed to play the lead role in playwright-turned-director Israel Horowitz's My Old Lady — the 66-year-old star had a curious motivation to accept the part.

"As one ages, there are fewer and fewer roles where you get the girl," said Kline during a recent interview at the Toronto International Film Festival.

"Usually you're the old professor or the father (and) your son gets the girl and I have to give him my blessing and I get to die."

A witty light comedy, My Old Lady casts cordial Kline as a contemptuous American who gets a surprise when the Parisian apartment his estranged father willed to him comes with a string — namely a longtime, nonagenarian tenant (Maggie Smith) who has no intention of leaving.

"I just hadn't read anything like it and I thought there was something very true in the character," explained Kline whose most frequent films, include Last Vegas and No Strings Attached.

"All the characters were people that one could recognize — they weren't super-heroes or super anything."

In fact, Kline (who is famously known as "Kevin DeKline" for his reluctance in choosing films) was drawn more to the character's depth and the simple psychological ties to his past. As he attempts to eject his retired renter, he begins to learn more about his estranged father and must face his conflicted childhood.

"It's about quite a bit more than just damaged people," said Kline.

"(Director) Israel (Horowitz) has taken this failure and placed him in this alien place where he's got to find himself as we all do when we're put in some foreign locale.

"He's also trying to find his footing in life and his father seems to have thrown a real curveball at him ... so there's a lot going on — it's kind of a coming-of-age movie, it's about childhood and really growing up."

More than 'Batman without Batman'

Gotham. Inhabiting Batman's universe is a kick for series star Ben McKenzie — even if he won't grow up to be Gary Oldman

A one-sentence summary of the gloomy new comic book-based series Gotham doubles as its chief criticism: It's Batman without Batman.

Star Ben McKenzie knows this. He's the show's fulcrum, portraying a young Commissioner Jim Gordon when he's still just a detective paddling in seeming futility against a tide of crime and corruption. The show kicks off with Bruce Wayne still a child, about to endure the formative horror of seeing his parents murdered in front of him.

When the show was first announced, Simpsons writer Mike Scully tidily summed up the skepticism of many onlookers when he tweeted: "Can't wait to see Gotham to learn how Officer Gordon became Commissioner Gordon. Hoping for lots of test-taking and waiting for scores."

McKenzie was actually among the 600-plus who retweeted the quip, and — as he journeyed to Canada in the spring to promote the show — his eyes lit up when reminded of it. But of course, he disagrees.

"I understand the reflex of 'Batman show without Batman,'" said the chatty Texan, best-known for starring roles on The O.C. and Southland.

"But I think there's so many people who are really, really fans of the entire universe that surrounds Batman. I mean, do you go to the movies and see the (Christopher) Nolan versions only for Christian Bale's performance as Batman? No, of course not. You go to see all of these other characters, right?"

"I understand the criticism," he continued, "but my short answer is, just watch it. If you don't like it, don't keep watching it, but I'm really proud of the pilot we've made ... I think people who are fans of this are, for the most part,

Of course, Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. failed to completely ignite despite similarly lucrative associations. But that show featured a cast of characters almost totally new to viewers, whereas McKenzie stresses the familiarity of the Gotham universe.

Well, to most people. The 35-year-old actor, a University of Virginia graduate and nephew to Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Robert Schenkkan, notes with bemused wonder that he was given focus-group data in which a third of those polled hadn't heard of Batman.

"Lord knows where they pull these people from," he marvelled. "That can't possibly be. Now that I'm a part of it, I walk around, you go to the mall, you see people in Batman shirts, just walking around."

"It's just entered the lexicon. It's entered the never-ending zeitgeist."

Gotham isn't McKenzie's first entry point into the Batman universe. He actually voiced the avenging orphan in the animated film Batman: Year One, which also showcased the talents of Bryan Cranston — who just won a Tony Award for his performance in All the Way, a play, McKenzie points out, written by his uncle.

Growing up, McKenzie and his brother used to watch the arch, richly cheesy Adam West-starring '60s Batman every afternoon. And he loves Nolan's bleak, coffee-black cinematic take, in which intense Oscar nominee Gary Oldman inhabited the role of the noble police chief.

"Someone tweeted me that it's so cool you'll grow up and be Gary Oldman," McKenzie recalled. "I was like, 'Sadly, I don't think that's how it works.'"

Welcome to the world that inspired the Caped one's crusade going to lose their minds."

For those devotees of the 75-year-old DC Comics franchise, McKenzie promises that Gotham will showcase the rogues' gallery of freaks Batman eventually goes on to fight, in variously fledgling states of villainy.

We'll learn more about Wayne, too. And McKenzie's vision for the show's eventual end would see a finally grown Wayne slip on the cape and cowl for the first time.

"(That's) hopefully a long time from now," said McKenzie, rapping his knuckles on the wooden table to keep his karma straight.

He's confident about the show's fortunes, and he's not alone. Given the show's blockbuster ties, it was earmarked early as a possible fall break-out.

More superhero shows

Comic books take over TV

Superheroes aren't just dominating at the multiplex — they're also flying onto the small screen, with at least four new TV series inspired by caped crusaders set to debut.

Gotham, The Flash and Marvel's Agent Carter will join the ranks of Arrow and Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. on CTV. Meanwhile Constantine, based on the DC Comics series about occult detective John Constantine, will air on Global.

Matt Ryan in Constantine. NBC

Once thought to be the realm of outsiders and nerds, comic books are now decidedly mainstream. And since they come with a built-in fan base, TV shows based on comics are a solid bet for network executives hoping to land a ratings hit.

Phil King, president of CTV programming, said in an interview during the network's spring upfronts that name recognition wasn't enough for comic book shows to last — they also have to be good.

"We already spend millions of dollars to market shows, so you want any advantage you can get where people go, 'Oh, Gotham, cool, I'll check it out.' But that only gets people in the door Episode 1. If the show isn't very good, it'll flop at No. 2 and it'll be gone by 3," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

WINNIPEG'S CHANCE TO EASILY MEET CANDIDATES FACE TO FACE

Free Admission • RBC Convention Centre

Monday, September 22nd, from 6:30 p.m. - 8:30 p.m.

Here's how it works: You show up. You don't pay anything. You don't have to listen to speeches. You don't have to watch any grandstanding. You're given a map of the candidates, and you go talk to them. That's it. You just have to show up to get answers. It doesn't get easier than that!

All nine candidates for mayor will be there, and most councillor candidates.

Metro Winnipeg is committed to giving our readers information when they want it, how they want it. This is a free, one-stop shop to find out the ideas candidates in your neighbourhood have to fix the roads, fund transit, deal with poverty issues, keep our green space gorgeous, keep taxes in line, and their plan to be transparent.

Amazon looks forward with Transparent

Transforming TV.

Series about a transgender parent premieres on Amazon's streaming service

Online retail giant Amazon is celebrating the launch of a new original show it hopes will help it catch up with streaming pioneer Netflix.

Transparent, which had a red-carpet unveiling in Los Angeles, features a transgender character in the central role of a show which has already generated strong critical buzz.

"No one can ever doubt that the TV model has changed for good. Amazon, with its ability to draw in name talent, is impressively building on what Netflix and (rival streaming service) Hulu are doing," commented the Hollywood Reporter.

"This is huge, it's a game changer. There is nothing like this on television," its main star Jeffrey Tambor said on the red carpet. "I couldn't be more proud."

It is not Amazon's first foray into producing its own original content — political comedy Alpha House debuted last year, but has so far failed to win the acclaim of Netflix series like House of Cards and Orange Is the New Black.

The pilot episode of Transparent is already available, while Amazon will take a leaf out of Netflix's book by releasing the whole season on Sept. 26 to binge-watch, rather than airing weekly episodes.

Quoted

"This is huge, it's a game changer. There is nothing like this on television."

Jeffrey Tambor, star of Transparent

The half-hour dark comedy stars the lugubrious Tambor — from Arrested Development — as father Mort Pfefferman coming out as transgender Maura to his three adult children (who have their own secrets to divulge, too).

The cast of the show, which is definitely for an adult audience, also includes Gaby Hoffman of the hit series Girls.

Adding to its creative heft, it is directed by Jill Soloway, an Emmy-nominated writer from the cult series Six Feet Under.

"Artistically, it's been a dream come true. I absolutely got to make the show I wanted to make," Soloway said, when the Amazon series was announced in August.

"I am beyond excited to share Transparent with the world through Amazon."

Transgender roles in comedies are nothing new. Orange Is the New Black features Laverne Cox, who made it to the front page of Time magazine in her role as Sophia Burset. But a transgender main character is rarer, giving the series — the title of which is a play on words involving a gender-bending parent — an edge in a crowded new market.

Critics have lavished praise on what they've seen so far.

"It's a nuanced, gorgeous first half-hour, brilliantly performed and laced with melancholy and humour; you could confidently put it up against the best HBO or Showtime half-hour pilots of recent years," wrote one Time magazine reviewer.

"And the fact that platforms like Amazon now exist to give shows like this a chance says that not only Maura Pfefferman, but the TV business itself, is going through an exciting transformation." AFP

Heroes Reborn. Quinto rejects role in miniseries

Zachary Quinto got his big acting break on NBC's Heroes, but he's ruling out any role in the Heroes Reborn miniseries due to air next year.

The 37-year-old actor, who's best known for his role as Spock on the 2009 Star Trek reboot, says timing is part of the problem, but that he also felt that it wasn't right for him creatively, because he's "really interested in cultivating other experiences" for himself.

Instead, he's turning his attention to mentoring two first-time filmmakers on the unscripted series The Chair, which airs on the Starz network in the U.S. In the series, the filmmakers adapt their own movie from the same screenplay. Viewers vote on which film they prefer, with $250,000 going to the winner.

There's also his production company, which executive produced The Chair, the Oscar-nominated Robert Redford film All Is Lost and the upcoming NBC miniseries The Slap, in which Quinto is one of the three co-stars.

Quinto is also signed on to appear in one more Star Trek film, expected out in 2016.

Although there's nothing firm, filming could begin early next year, he says.

"It's starting to rumble," he says. "I feel it on the horizon."

Housewives of hockey

Reality series will follow wives or girlfriends of NHL stars

The wives and girlfriends of NHL stars will take centre ice in a new TV series, showcasing the women behind some of hockey's top stars and emerging young talents.

Nicole Brown, wife of Los Angeles Kings captain Dustin Brown, and Noreen DeWulf, wife of Vancouver Canucks goaltender Ryan Miller, have so far been confirmed to take part in the new show.

The still unnamed "deep access" documentary series will follow the women over the course of an NHL season.

This show is produced by Bristow Global Media, which also created the series NHL Revealed: A Season Like No Other in partnership with the NHL and the league's players association.

The new series is slated to launch on W Network next February.

Destiny merges its story with its multiplayer to awkward effect. You replay the same maps where enemies re-spawn while others play their game around you. Even with Peter Dinklage (Game of Thrones) voicing your AI companion, there's little sense of adventure where your actions have consequences. The encouragement is to create your own fun with others online, and the slick interplay of guns, swords, and hover-bikes makes that worthwhile. It's fun to grind against demon-robot monsters, but it feels disconnected following Bungie's emotional, character-driven series, Halo. KRIS ABEL

Kendall gets the butt-out-of-our-biz treatment from other NYFW models

Apparently there's even hazing in the fashion world, as Kendall Jenner reportedly learned during her New York Fashion Week debut earlier this month. "The other models worked so hard to get a spot on the runway and didn't think it was fair that she was

Liquid Assets

Go beyond the obvious

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Wine and food pairing is an exercise in avoiding the obvious. Too often foodies focus on the main feature of a dish and ignore secondary components when picking a liquid to match.

Sauces, spices and even vegetables will influence your dinner's outcome, masking what you might think is the upfront flavour generator.

This week's recipe is a classic example. The chicken might seem the decision maker, or maybe it's the pasta noodles. It's really the can of tomatoes.

Though the humble tomato may look harmless, it's an acid bomb that doesn't play well with most wines. At the heart of Ricardo's rustic lasagna, it demands you choose a wine with an equally acidic personality.

Many Italian grapes fit the bill. A white pinot grigio or red sangiovese or barbera has more than enough acidity.

I'm partial to a pinot noir from France or California. Chateau St. Jean's 2012 Sonoma Coast Pinot Noir ($18.99 - $19.95) is a plump and juicy Californian with plenty of tomato-friendly acid and bright red fruit.

No talk of playoffs from Maurice – yet

NHL. Coach defends Pavelec, says Jets 'need to put a structure in front of him'

Their goaltending was near the bottom of the league last season, but coach Paul Maurice says the Winnipeg Jets have to play better hockey in front of Ondrej Pavelec before they can assess their starter.

"Play a strong enough game in front of him, give him a chance to win every night, and then we'll make an assessment of our goaltending and where it's at," Maurice said as training camp opened Thursday with player physicals.

General manager Kevin Cheveldayoff and now Maurice haven't wavered in their support of the Czech import, and his teammates agree they haven't always given him the help he needs.

Pavelec, 27, joined the Atlanta Thrashers in 2007-08 and became their starter in 2009-10. He was the team's most valuable player in 2011-12, the year the Thrashers relocated to Winnipeg and became the Jets, but even then his numbers weren't great.

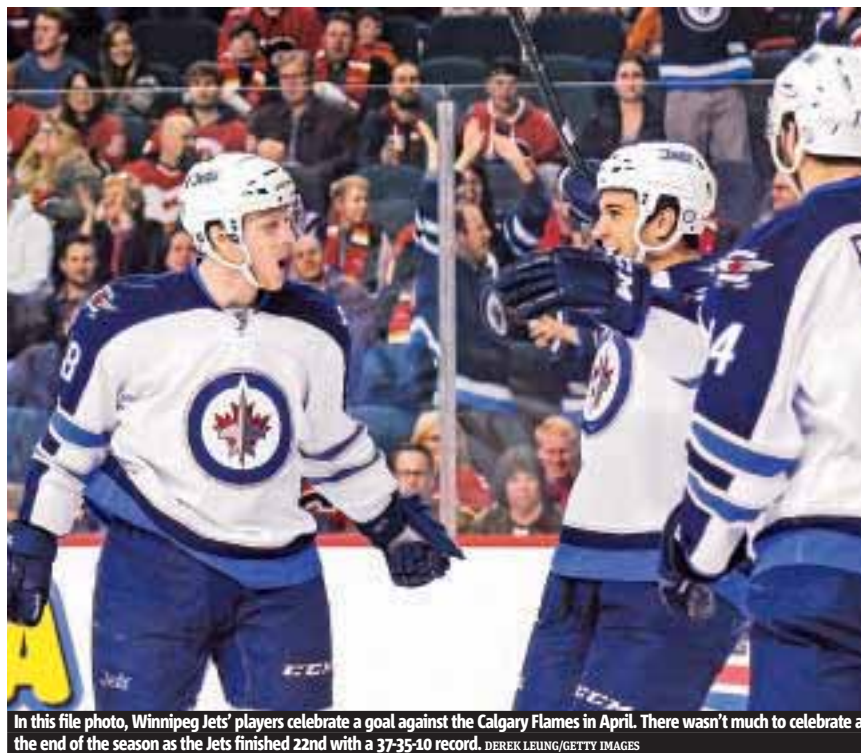

They turned abysmal last season. Pavelec let in the most goals of any netminder in the league at 163 and his .901 save percentage was tied with Martin Brodeur at the bottom of the 30 players with 39 games or more.

The Jets finished 22nd last season, with a record of 37-35-10. Pavelec's record was 22-26-7.

A trimmer and presumably fitter Pavelec went through his physical with his teammates Thursday. No players were made available to reporters.

Maurice was the only voice explaining what the team will try to do to get better and he wasn't making any rash promises about playoff hockey come next spring.

"You're going to ask me every day, 'Hey, are you guys

Role call

The Jets hit the practice ice Friday and play their first exhibition game Monday, when the Minnesota Wild visit the MTS Centre in Winnipeg.

- The biggest change is the replacement of centre Olli Jokinen with Mathieu Perreault, who had 18 goals and 43 points in 69 games with the Ducks and is only 26.
- The big hope for new talent comes from Jets' prospects like No. 1 draft pick Nikolaj Ehlers, 18, and Adam Lowry, a six-foot-five centre coming from a solid rookie year in the AHL.

an answer for you somewhere in the early part of April ..."

"I tell you what we're going to do. We're going to work our butts off in training camp to get better."

That includes Pavelec, he said.

"We need Ondrej to be every bit better as every other player ... The talent is there and we've seen it. We need to put a structure in front of him that he understands ... He needs to do the work."

His backup this season, at least so far, looks like rookie Michael Hutchinson, who came out of the Jets AHL farm team late last season.

Maurice said the most important thing the Jets can do this season is improve defensively.

"No Stanley Cup champion ranks in the top-10 of everything but the one area that's consistent is they're good defensively."

Penguins

Crosby, Malkin dinged up before training camp

Penguins forwards Sidney Crosby and Evgeni Malkin will be held out of the start of training camp as a precaution with what the team described as minor injuries.

First-year coach Mike Johnston said both players were injured in the lead-up to camp, which begins Friday.

Neither injury is considered long-term.

Ducks

Ghost of Selanne lingers in Anaheim

Teemu Selanne managed to make a stir on the first day of the Anaheim Ducks' training camp even after his retirement.

Coach Bruce Boudreau reacted with disappointment Thursday after hearing about Selanne's fierce criticism of Boudreau in a new biography.

Selanne retired at age 43 following a 21-season NHL career, spent mostly in Anaheim. His disagreements with Boudreau last season about his playing time and role were hardly secrets, but Selanne's decision to air them in public surprised the Ducks.

Several media outlets obtained copies of the Finnish book and translated the passages criticizing Boudreau's decisions regarding Selanne, who felt betrayed by his dwindling role in his final season. Selanne, who flirted with retirement for seven consecutive summers, said he might have played another year if Boudreau wasn't the Ducks' coach.

Choke-land? A's can't stop spiral vs. lowly Rangers

MLB. One-time World Series front-runners from California had best record in bgs on Aug. 15

The Oakland Athletics are stunned by their September collapse, yet stuck to find a solution.

And with the way things are going, manager Bob Melvin can't talk about playoffs, let alone plan for them.

Sonny Gray and the A's kept tumbling Thursday, falling out of the top AL wild-card spot with a 7-2 loss to Texas that gave the Rangers a three-game sweep.

"It's not very fun. When you're in a race, it's supposed to be fun," left-fielder Brandon Moss said. "But I don't see anyone in this clubhouse having any fun, because it's not. We're pretty frustrated. We're disappointed. But it's not over, and we know that."

The latest loss to the team with the worst record in the majors dropped the A's a half-game behind idle Kansas City for the first wild-card slot.

"We're still in the wild card. All that's moot unless we start to play better. We'll find ourselves in no position if we continue to lose," Melvin said. "You've got to fight being beat down based on what has transpired here recently.... It's tough sometimes to get over these things. They're all accountable for what they do. We all are."

Texas roughed up Gray (13-9) for four runs in the first inning and won its season-best sixth in a row. Oakland has lost six of eight.

Gray saw his winless stretch reach five starts.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

A relationship may be going through a rough patch but the planets indicate there's nothing to worry about. You could still make things easier by not giving them the impression you don't care, when you do.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

It doesn't matter what threats you make today, a work colleague will move at their own speed — and that's dead slow! All you can do is grit your teeth and bear it.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Your priority now must be to get out into the world and do what Geminis do best — have fun. Career and money worries can be left until another day, or another week, or another month, or another year.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

There will be good and bad days but there will be a lot more of the former if you change the way you assess what is "good" and "bad". You can be far too hard on yourself.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

However difficult your current situation may be you will handle it with ease. What you need to realize is that whatever you have to face, today or any other day, is what you are meant to face. On the cosmic level it's all good.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

What happened in the past is irrelevant to your present situation. Look back only to learn a lesson or two then look and move forward.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Don't beat yourself up about something that went wrong. If you indulge your emotions, you may lose sight of good things you have to be thankful for.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Something that made perfect sense a short while ago now seems to make no sense at all and it's immensely frustrating. Don't worry about it. A day or two from now you will have forgotten why you thought it was so important.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You may have strong views on controversial topics but the planets warn this is not the right time to make an issue of them. Wait until the Sun moves in your favour on the 23rd.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You may be having a great deal of fun but have you considered the consequences which could arise from some of your more impulsive actions? Take time out today to think about what you are doing and why.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The answers you seek are easily found, but only if you ask the right questions in the right way. You're an Aquarius, so think, speak and act big.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

The best way to deal with a negative situation is to ignore it. No, really. The more you focus on what's going wrong the longer it will stick around, so starve it of the oxygen of attention and see how fast it shrinks in importance.

You deserve credit from someone who's credible.
